Miss Lula Riechmann was the innocent cause of a series of jealous quarrels over her between John Walthouse, Z years eld, and Julius Schulte, a German, 26 years old, which edded yesterday evening at 6:29 o clock at No. 916 South Second street in Schulte stabbing Wallhouse to death with a reamer, a long, sharp-edged tool, used for enlarging, troing or taper-

Neither of the men received any encouragement in their love for Miss Riech-ban Park and Creve Corur.

The arrests did not seem to have any than a few words to say to either Wallhouse or Schulte, who were boarders in the home of her mother, Mrs. Charlotte Riechmann at the South Second street address. Miss Riechmann and her sisters are walters at the table, and the sister stated last night that there was no cause for jewlousy upon the part of either man. Schulte was intustented when arrested by Patrolman O'Gata shortly after the killing, and from his rambling talk it was earned that several days ago Walihouse threatened that if he spoke to Miss Rischmann again it would cost Schulte his life. The bitter jealousy engendered over a norms who cared nothing for either con-nen had a fight, but were separated before injury was done. After being served with supper last night the men met in the sitting-room of the boarding-holuse and the third and fatal quarrel was begun. Schuite states that he was struck from behind by Wallhouse whereupon he drew the reamer from his pocket and stabbed Wallhouse twice. Wallhouse died before he reached the City Dispensary Schulte sustained a firstured tose and several blows on the head, though not seriously injured.

Doctor W S Lawrence of the City Dispeneary, who pronounced Wallhouse dead, stated that either of the wounds received Wallhouse would have proven fatal. One would was about three inches below the left nipple, in the heart region, and

THOUSANDS VISIT SHAW'S GARDEN

First Open Sunday Attracts Throng to View Magnificent Floral Display - Many New Plants Admired.

Yesterday was open Sunday at Shaw's Garden. According to the will of the late Henry Shaw, the Missouri Botanical Garden shall be closed on Sundays except den continued to do a flourishing business the first Sunday in June and the first Sunday in September. During the week the garden is open from sunrise to sunset. Thousands of visitors yesterday enjoyed the floral display, which in beauty and extext surpassed former exhibitions in this.

the finest garden in the world. The garden is in excellent condition. The weather this season has been very favorable to the culture and growing of plants. The hothouses are full of rare and interesting plants from tropical regions. The garden proper is a mass of color and full of the fragrance of roses, sweet williams, ten-day stalks, pansies, peonics. honeysuckles and a host of other old-time favorites.

The orchid house is full of interesting air plants. The credid collection at Shaw's Garden is the largest and most Dendrobulm thyrsiflorum, an erchid from Burma, is now in bloom. This plant has eighteen flower spikes, each about nine inches long and completely covered with a mass of pure white and orange flowers. The petals are white and the lip a desp orange. This is one of the finest specimens of the Dendrobulm ever grown in this country.

Another interesting orchid is one of the lady slippers, a South American plant. In form this plant resembles the common form of the lady slippers, except that the petals are twenty-two inches long. There are several other orchids in bloom. The frog orchid, which has the largest growth of any orchid, and the shell-lipped orchid and several Philippine orchids are among

There are also to be found in the orchid house several interesting insectiverous plants, among them the Venue fly trap. This is one of the most curlous plants of This is one of the most curious plants of this character.

The flowers of the plant are broad and shell-shaped and work as if on hinges. The instant the fly enters the flower for the nectar the plant closes and holds it until it has digested the prey. The plant will then open for another victim.

INSECTIVOROUS PLANTS. In the East India house some fine specimens of the pitcher plant are to be geen. The pitcher plant belongs to the insec-tivorous plants. Cockronches and flies may be seen in the pitcher-shaped flowers

The Euphorbia, the African desert plant, is to the African desert what the cactus is to the American desert. They are a different fundly, but grow under the same conditions and have the same form, except that the Euphorbia has a milky luice and large thorns, while most of the American cacti are covered with small spines and very few of them have a milky fuice. most of the roses, but the Gruss an Teplitz, which is perfectly hardy in this cilmate and a profuse and constant bloomer, is in an excellent condition and makes upfor all the other varieties. It is a rose of exquisite shape, a rich carmine in color and very fragrant. James Gurney, the gardener emeritus of Shaw's Garden
and superintendent of Tower Grove Park, Pronounces the Gruss an Teplitz the "Queen of Roses." After years of experience in rose culture Mr. Gurney has found the Gruss an Teplitz the rose best suited to this climate.

The annuals are not in bloom, but the beds are full of vigorous young plants, which form a soft green background to the bright red of the roses and the brilliant blue of the larksyrus.

The agrave collection is just south of the biblical collection. In this group there is a century plant in bloom. It is the common belief that this plant must be a century old before it will bloom. This is erroneous. In its home it will bloom when the plant is 8 or 12 years old, but in this country it takes it longer to mature. After the plant has bloomed it dies three After the plant has bloomed it dies the After the plant has bloomed it dies the After the plant has bloomed it dies make hemp and twine.
